

DRAPER FUNERAL PLANS COMPLETED

"Dean of Senate" to Be Laid at Rest in Congressional Cemetery Tomorrow.

Charles S. Draper, dean of the staff of employees of the Senate, died yesterday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock in his home, 325 A street southeast. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from his late home. The Rev. J. J. Butler, pastor of Luther Memorial Church, and formerly chaplain of the Senate, will officiate. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery. The pallbearers, who have been selected from among Mr. Draper's associates at the Capitol, will be Richard B. Nixon, George Boyd, James Crystal, E. C. Stubbs, and Thomas Dawson.

Mr. Draper had been in ill health several years, although he did not relinquish his duties at the Capitol until recently. He was confined to bed two weeks before his death.

Was Oldest Employee.

"Colonel" Draper, as he was known to his associates, was the oldest employee in the Senate. Later he had been on duty at the diplomatic gallery, his health having failed and the work there being easier. Mr. Draper went to the Capitol as a page in the Senate when he was twelve years old. He and Arthur P. Gorman, late Senator from Maryland, entered at the same time. Mr. Draper's service at the Capitol extended over a period of fifty-seven years. In that time he became acquainted with many of the most notable public men in the service of the Government, and attended the funeral of nearly every great statesman and President who died in that period. He was a personal friend of General Grant and twice declined commissions in the army tendered to him by Grant.

Loyal to His Friends.

"Colonel" Draper was greatly beloved by the men employed about the Capitol. He was loyal to his friends and to his duties. On one occasion many years ago he was stationed at the diplomatic gallery, and had received orders that if he admitted anyone to the gallery who was not entitled to occupy a seat there it would result in dismissal from the service. The crowd was very great and he was compelled to refuse many Senators admission to the gallery. In the crowd came a man wearing a cape. As he approached the door just to look through Mr. Draper recognized General Grant. He admitted him at once and promptly went to the office of sergeant-at-arms and tendered his resignation, saying he had disobeyed orders. The resignation was not accepted, but Mr. Draper was promoted.

Previous to his assignment to the diplomatic gallery, Mr. Draper was on duty in the room of the District Committee of the Senate. Mr. Draper is survived by his wife and three sons, Paul A. Draper, George H. Draper and W. Albert Draper.

LUNCHROOM MAN FINED.

William Elen, who conducts a lunchroom at 163 Seventh street northwest, was fined $5 in the District Court this morning on a charge of violating the health regulations. Witnesses testified that the place was unclean.

CONSCIENCEFUND ENRICHED

The conscience fund was enriched to the extent of $1.50 today by a contribution from an unknown man at Concord, N. H. Assistant Secretary Coolidge, to whom the money was turned over, said he hoped that the money was sent by ex-Senator Chandler, but had no reason to think that he was the sender.

Wright May Fly for Speed At Fort Myer This Evening

Abandons Early Plan to Take Short Flights With a Passenger—Excels Best Record by Staying Up Over Hour.

Orville Wright probably will make an attempt to make a speed record for aeroplanes this afternoon. He may make the try between 4 and 6 o'clock. Although as a rule he never divulges his plans, he stated that he would fly unless conditions were unfavorable.

After breaking four world's records in two days, Orville Wright didn't go out to Fort Myer this morning, as he had intended. It was his purpose to take several short flights this morning with another passenger, so that he might become accustomed to the double load before he makes his official trials, probably next week.

When Wright made his fourth record-breaking trip last night, he had no idea of attempting to equal or surpass the time of 62 minutes 15 seconds, but as the minutes flew by, and as he perceived through signals from his mechanic, Taylor, that he was near the best time he has made, he kept going until he had been up just one hour five minutes and fifty-two seconds.

Flies in the Wind.

This overtopping record was made under adverse conditions, the wind blowing at times as high as twelve miles an hour, and for most of the flight there was quite a strong breeze, although the velocity mentioned was not reached until near the end.

In spite of this high wind—the highest which Wright has faced since he began his flights at Fort Myer—the aeroplane behaved well, and while it dipped a bit on the turns, there was no evidence that he was at all handicapped by the wind. Wright has grown more confident with each flight lately, and last night he made wider and wider circles, extending the boundaries of his trips far out over the western border of Arlington.

At times he sought altitudes higher than any he has yet attempted here, and while it is impossible to judge accurately his height, the best opinion seemed to be that he had been up at least 150 feet.

Makes Fifty-eight Turns.

Wright came down after the fifty-eight circuit—each circuit being longer than those of previous days—for the reason that the engine was missing a bit; the wind was coming up rather strong, and his eyes were becoming inflamed, even under his automobile goggles.

It was estimated that the machine traveled about forty-one miles, and that the average speed made was about thirty-eight miles an hour. With the wind blowing as it was, this is considered very good time, and it is not likely that anyone will surpass it until Orville or his brother Wilbur decides that it has remained the record long enough.

Wright has been receiving many letters, and last few days he has been greeted not only with telegrams of congratulation and admiration, but with offers of all sorts from persons who want to make him the star attraction at various fairs. He hasn't considered any of them seriously yet, and about one look in his calm eyes is enough to convince most persons that he isn't at all likely to go into the show business.

Wilbur Wright Fails In Attempts to Fly

LE MANS, France, Sept. 11.—Wilbur Wright attempted three aeroplane flights today without success. He abandoned the first two flights owing to fog, and after a brief sail on his third attempt on account of the failure of his sparking apparatus to work properly. His longest flight today was 4 minutes and 52 seconds.

The success of Orville Wright has astounded all Europe, and the prediction is freely made that he will be the one to win the London Mall's prize of $50,000 for a flight from London to Manchester, and the M. Michelin prize of $25,000 for a flight from Paris to the dome of the cathedral at Clermont-Ferrand.

MRS. JORDAN SLAIN BY STRANGULATION

Physicians Say Her Head Was Cut Off Within an Hour.

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—If the grand jury which is investigating the alleged murder of Mrs. Honora Jordan by her husband follows the report just submitted by the physicians who examined the remains, they will find that the woman met her death by strangulation at her home in Somerville on the evening of September 1.

The medical examiners, it was learned today, report that the woman was first felled with a blunt weapon, then choked to death, and that within an hour her head was cut off.

Five expert pathologists have been engaged by the Jordan defense. They took part in the autopsy yesterday, and probably will be called as witnesses at the trial. No expense is being spared to clear the prisoner of the crime, which he has confessed.

Jordan admitted having knocked his wife down after a quarrel, but says his mind was blank until he found her dead, and then cut up the body for purposes of concealment.

SENATOR ANKENY LOSES IN PRIMARY

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 11.—Although the returns from the State primaries held on September 8 are still incomplete, the figures available leave no doubt of the victory of Representative Wesley J. Jones for United States Senator over Levi Ankeny, incumbent.

Miles Pondexter (Rep.), of Spokane, has been chosen to succeed Jones. There was no opposition to William E. Humphrey, of Seattle, First district, and Francis W. Cushman, of Tacoma, Second district.

OPTION IS TAKEN ON RESORT PROPERTY

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Sept. 11.—New York capitalists, whose names are withheld, have paid $5,000 to secure a short time option on the Cave of the Winds, the Manitou Cliff Dwellers' ruins and South Cheyenne Canyon, including Seven Falls. The purchase price, according to an attorney, R. S. Ellison, representing the local companies, is $500,000.

The properties are visited yearly by thousands of tourists. Helen Hunt Jackson, the author, was buried at the head of Seven Falls. The prospective purchasers examined the properties this summer.

OPPOSES SALOONS CLOSE TO HOMES

Assessor Thinks They Should Be Kept in Business District.

The establishment of additional saloons in residential neighborhoods will not be permitted in the future, according to W. P. Richards, Assessor of the District and chairman ex officio of the excise board.

Mr. Richards announced himself today as unalterably opposed to the transfer of liquor licenses from business to residential sections, and every such application since his connection with the board has been refused.

Chances Slight.

"I can see no necessity for such saloons," said Mr. Richards. "Every man is entitled to a hearing before the board on the question of his application for a liquor license or a transfer of license, but it will require an excellent argument to convince me and other members of the board of the demand for saloons in the neighborhood of the homes."

"Such establishments, in my opinion, should be located in business sections. Afraid of Liquor Men.

"There is frequently opposition to the establishment of a saloon in a business locality, but the objectors lack the nerve to appear personally before the excise board in protest. They are, in fact, afraid of the liquor men."

In such instances there is nothing for the board to do but grant the license if the applicant has obtained the number of signatures, and otherwise complied with the law."

Mr. Richards expressed himself as in favor of a higher license for both retail and wholesale liquor establishments. The retail license, he said, should not be less than $100 a month. A bill to increase the retail license to $1,500 a year was forwarded by the Commissioners to the last Congress, but failed of adoption. The Commissioners will, at the coming session, renew their efforts in this direction.

CROSBY S. NOYES IS DOUBLY HONORED

Bust in Bronze to Be Placed in District Building, Tablet in Boys' Training School.

It has been determined by the Crosby S. Noyes Memorial Committee, of which Commissioner Macfarland is chairman, to have made an heroic bust in bronze of Mr. Noyes, to be placed in the District Building. The committee has commissioned William Couper, of New York, as the sculptor.

The bust of Mr. Noyes will rest on a suitable pedestal bearing an appropriate inscription.

In addition, the committee has determined to place in the National Training School, formerly the Reform School of the District of Columbia, of which Mr. Noyes was president, a large bronze memorial tablet commemorating his services to the philanthropic causes of the District.

The treasurer of the committee, Charles J. Bell, has reported the total amount of the subscription fund as $3,122, which will be sufficient to cover all expenses.
